

What Type of Talk Is Best for Your Students?

Sheri has given talks for groups of up to 80 students, ranging in age from 4 to 13. Depending on the ages and interests of the audience, Sheri usually reads her books out loud, talks about the writing and editing process, discusses the roles of the various people who work in publishing, and gets the students to suggest some of the elements common to all stories.

Sheri would be happy to work with teachers and librarians to coordinate her talk with lesson plans, specific topics of interest, or writing contests. She would also love to work individually with students studying journalism or creative writing.

The Penelope Books

Penelope & the Preposterous Birthday Party

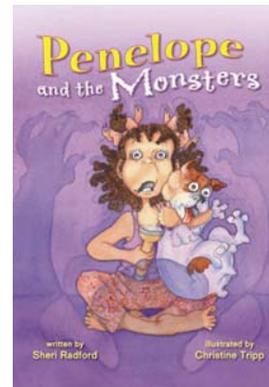

Lobster Press, Spring 2009

Penelope invites everyone to her birthday party – and havoc ensues when literally everyone shows up.

Penelope & the Monsters

Lobster Press, Spring 2005

In her own unique style, Penelope confronts the gnomes in her dresser, trolls in her closet, and giants under her bed. Shortlisted for the Blue Spruce Award and Chocolate Lily Award.

Penelope & the Humongous Burp

Lobster Press, Spring 2004

Penelope learns what disastrous events can come from drinking a glass of grape soda pop. Named one of the top 10 books of 2004 by the Canadian Toy Testing Council.

Praise

Thank you so much for sharing your time and your book with us. Your book has a special place in our classroom and the children love to pick it up and read it to each other. What a great experience for them to meet an author!

~ Ms. Pretty (grade 1 teacher)

Thank you for sharing Penelope with us! We're looking forward to her other adventures.

~ Ms. Kerfoot (school librarian)

Thank you for inviting us to hear your story. I liked how you read. I liked how you said the words.

~ Melissa (grade 1 student)

Thank you so much for your wonderful story reading at Chapters. My class enjoyed it so much. I look forward to seeing your new books in print and will keep track of publicity dates on your website.

Thanks again for an enjoyable afternoon.

~ Mrs. Hart (grade 1-2 teacher)
