

The 39 Steps

To November 21

You've never seen Hitchcock like this before: the master of suspense's classic film is performed live, almost verbatim, by four actors. One portrays the lead character, one plays the trio of love interests, and two perform more than 100 other characters—everything from villains to children to the occasional inanimate object. Catch all the craziness at the Stanley Industrial Alliance Stage (page 49).

Billy Connolly

November 25 and 26

The Scottish comedian/actor has played everything from a hitman to Queen Victoria's servant-turned-companion to a collar-wearing pet zombie, and he's regularly voted one of the most popular comics in Britain. See "The Big One" for yourself at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre (page 30), but be ready for ribald humour peppered with f-bombs.

Caillou's Greatest Skate of All

November 14

Singalongs, audience participation and exciting displays of inline skating guarantee fun for Caillou fans of any age, at The Centre in Vancouver for Performing Arts (page 29).

Anne-Sophie Mutter

November 9

The Grammy Award-winning German violin virtuoso has been wowing audiences since she was a young child. She is joined on stage at the Orpheum Theatre (page 30) by Yuri Bashmet (viola) and Lynn Harrell (cello) for an evening of Beethoven.
