The Twilight Saga

Everyone adores Vancouver's stunning scenery—locals, visitors, even vampires and werewolves. Perhaps that's why most of the Twilight movies have been filmed here, including The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn—Part 1, which sinks its fangs into theatres Nov. 18. The saga of the love triangle of human Bella, vampire Edward and werewolf Jacob is based on the bestselling series of young adult novels by Stephenie Meyer. Twi-hards from around the world flocked here during filming, letting blog and Twitter updates lead them to likely spots for cast sightings.

Our fair city adeptly fills in for the series' setting of rainy Forks, Washington. After all, Vancouver is an old pro at mimicking other locations, having portrayed everything from Seattle in 50/50 and The Killing to New York City in Elf and Rumble in the Bronx to outer space in Battlestar Galactica and Stargate SG-1. Production companies love our rich array of scenery, our experienced crews and our mild climate, not to mention all the generous provincial and federal tax incentives. We well deserve our reputation as Hollywood North—and we haven't turned away a vampire or werewolf yet. W
