

KICK UP YOUR HEELS

FEB 7-12 You can't understand a man until you've walked a mile in his shoes—and that's especially true when the footwear in question is a pair of size 14 stilettos. Based on the movie of the same name, Kinky Boots (page 55) tells the story of Charlie, reluctant owner of an ailing shoe factory, who teams up with Lola, a larger-than-life drag queen, to produce sexy but sturdy shoes for men who dress as women for a living. The feel-good Broadway musical gets toes tapping at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

JUST FOR LAUGHS

FEB 16-25 Let Trevor Noah (pictured) tickle your funny bone at JFL Northwest (page 51). This stand-up guy—host of The Daily Show and author of the new memoir Born a Crime—headlines the festival, along with the Emmy Award-winning Sarah Silverman. Other funny folks performing on local stages include Iliza, the youngest comedian ever to win Last Comic Standing; Piff the Magic Dragon, the breakout star of America's Got Talent; and the Incorrigible Chris D'Elia.

LARGER THAN LIFE

JAN 31-FEB 19 There's no horsing around in Cavalia: Odysseo (page 51). The largest touring show on the planet features precise choreography of 65 horses and 48 riders, acrobats, aerialists, dancers and musicians. The end result is an epic production filled with breathtaking moments: horses galloping through sweeping vistas (thanks to the world's largest projection screen), a giant merry-go-round filled with live horses, and an on-stage lake for the water-filled grand finale. You heard that straight from the horse's mouth.
