

A snow globe by Main and Local combines two of the things Canada is famous for: poutine and icy weather. At www.mainandlocal.com.

Good things really do come in small packages: a wireless speaker by Kikkerland is tiny enough to go on a keychain. At Welk's (page 26).

When not in use, an inflatable neck pillow by Kikkerland folds down to almost nothing, saving precious suitcase space. At The Gallery Store (page 25).

Great Gifts for All

Perfect presents for everyone on your list

BY SHERI RADFORD

FOR THE Frequent Traveller

A leather passport holder by Ezra Arthur transports important travel documents in style. At Lion & Sun (page 20).

Globetrotters with an incurable case of wanderlust need a dose of Lonely Planet's Best in Travel 2019, which describes next year's must-see destinations. At local bookstores (page 20).

The Plant-Based Foodie Vancouver by Chris Dagenais showcases recipes and stories from 27 of Vancouver's best veggie venues, from MeeT to The Naam to The Acorn. At featured restaurants (see full list at www.foodiebooks.ca).

Made from barley grown and malted in BC, and blended with purified Vancouver water, East Van Vodka always makes spirits bright. At Odd Society (page 68).

Tree ornaments by First Growth Reclaimed Design are made from wood salvaged from pre-1940s homes being demolished in Vancouver. At Granville Island Pop-Up Shops (page 16) and www.firstgrowthreclaimed.com.

Handwoven in Vietnam from seagrass, Nomad baskets are a stylish storage solution. At EQ3 (page 26).

FOR THE Host with the Most

Rudolph the milk chocolate reindeer had a very shiny nose, and if you ever saw it, you would even say it looks almost too cute to eat. At Mon Paris (page 74).

Canadian singer-songwriter Dallas Green, better known as City and Colour, recorded his live album Guide Me Back Home during a cross-country tour last year. At www.cityandcolour.com.

A Holiday Blend Box from Milano (page 71), an artisan small-batch roaster, is perfect for java junkies and caffeine fiends.

Small in size but huge on style, the gold-and-diamond elephant brooch from Tiffany & Co. (page 27) is part of the Tiffany Save the Wild collection that raises funds for the Wildlife Conservation Network.

The world is your oyster in a necklace made from silver and grey pearls, part of the Hope Collection at Links of London (page 26).

A Rain Rules Jacket by Lululemon (page 28) protects from Vancouver's infamously abundant liquid sunshine.

The Direction signet ring from Vancouver's own Pyrrha was handcrafted from 14K gold on silver. Blue Ruby (page 26) carries a selection of Pyrrha jewellery, or shop the entire collection at www.pyrrha.com.

FOR THE Glamorous Gal

The Blue Dragon Edition of L'Elixir Des Glaciers Votre Visage features the luxurious face cream nestled inside a jewellery box made from lacquered Asian wood and blue Murano glass. At La Maison Valmont (page 61).

The limited-edition #Leo4Charity scarf delivers both good looks and good vibes, as it raises funds for schools in Africa via Plan International. At Marc Cain (page 20).

'Tis the season to sparkle in a Mix bracelet with blue crystals and rhodium plating from Swarovski (page 27).

Anyone would appreciate the timely gift of a new Rado HyperChrome Chronograph Automatic. At Lugaro (page 26) and Nordstrom (page 22).

The Travel Atomizer Coffret contains three fragrances by House of Creed, perfect for smelling good while on the go. At Holt Renfrew (page 22).

Sustainable, high-performance outdoorwear by Canadian company Frank and Oak (page 19) helps keep the elements at bay.

FOR THE Dapper Dude

For the man who isn't a military pilot but wants to look like one, the MA-1 Blood Chit Flight Jacket can be worn inside-out (pictured) to reveal a message in multiple languages identifying the wearer as a Canadian aviator. At Boys' Co (page 19).

A stylish gent can settle in for a long winter's nap wearing PJs by Desmond & Dempsey. At Holt Renfrew (page 22).

If he's hirsute, he'll appreciate the Gentleman's Beard Tin by Kikkerland. At The Gallery Store (page 25) and Welk's (page 26).

Vancouver artist Carson Ting collaborated with Evo Car Share and luxury sneaker brand Six Hundred Four (page 25) to produce this shoe, based on Ting's mural at 160 Water St.

What a hoot! Olivia the Owl is filled with scrumptious-smelling products such as a strawberry bath bomb and coconut hand cream, and the cute tin doubles as a money bank. At The Body Shop (page 61).

Wee ones slumber in true Canadian style wearing PJs by Hatley decorated with "Hockey Night in the Wild." At Indigo (page 20).

This cute-as-a-bunny hoodie by Oeuf was handmade from soft baby alpaca wool by a Fair Trade women's collective in Bolivia. At Holt Renfrew (page 22).

FOR THE Coolest Kid on the Block

Tiny tots have a whale of a time with an Aquadopt Kit from the Vancouver Aquarium (page 57). Each one contains a plush toy, certificate of adoption, fact booklet and collector card. Profits help fund the aquarium's conservation, research and education programs.

A pint-sized explorer can journey around the world (or just around the block) with luggage by Heys. At www.heids.ca.

A five-year-old girl with a heart defect designed Sparkles, this year's collectible teddy bear that raises funds for the Starlight Children's Foundation Canada. At Toys R Us (page 28).

Even Santa Claus needs a vacation sometimes, and this year he's chosen Vancouver for some R&R. But can he keep from being recognized? I Saw Santa in Vancouver by J.D. Green tells the tale. At local bookstores (page 20).