

Scents of Thailand

Folks around the world have long enjoyed the essential oils, body lotions and soaps from Lemongrass House (page 70). Until recently, North Americans were left out of the fragrant fun. Now, finally, the popular Thai brand has opened its first store on this continent, in Gastown. It's filled with all-natural spa products for grown-ups, babies and even the family dog. Stop by the welcoming store to pick up a new lip balm or room spray—or just take a deep breath and enjoy all the enticing aromas.

Camera-Ready

For a superstar look without a celebrity price tag, pick up Charlotte Tilbury's Hollywood Flawless Filter. This combination primer-highlighter delivers a dewy glow—as if the world is seeing you in soft-focus. Find this make-up must-have at Holt Renfrew (page 40).

Mud Magic

Want radiant skin? Mud from Hungary's moorland has been prized for over 2,000 years because of its healing mix of vitamins and minerals. It's used to create Omorovicza's Thermal Cleansing Balm, which hydrates as it cleanses. At Nordstrom (page 40).

A Pop of Pink

A fun new collection from Paul & Joe Beauté is music to our ears—or, more accurately, to our eyes and face. The April in Paris Limited Edition Collection consists of tiny dual-purpose powders in six shades, ranging from pink to coral to green. At Shoppers (page 71).
