

Fleetwood Mac

May 19

Those aren't just rumours: Fleetwood Mac (page 87) really is going on tour. To celebrate the 35th anniversary of Rumours, the rockers are issuing a deluxe new version of their hit album, including previously unreleased tracks, and hitting the arena circuit, making a one-night stop at Rogers Arena. Get ready to sing along to timeless hits such as "Go Your Own Way" and "You Make Loving Fun," and party like it's the '70s again.—Sheri Radford

EAT! Vancouver Food + Cooking Festival

May 24 to 26

Gastrophiles, mark your calendars. Canada's largest consumer food and beverage festival (page 22) is back for its 11th year. Dig into the festivities with sampler-sized versions of local restaurants' signature dishes at the Bites of Vancouver Pavilion, or sip your way through the Wine, Beer & Spirits Tasting Pavilion. Full to the brim? Walk it off as you wander through the 250 exhibits at the marketplace. Also found at the festival: delectable demonstrations by the Food Network's celebrity chefs and culinary classes that teach everything from brunch staples to cake building 101.—Jill Von Sprecken

Mother's Day

Mom may have appreciated gifts crafted out of macaroni and glitter at some point, but now? Trust us: she'd prefer a fragrance from the new L'Occitane Collection de Grasse, launching this month at L'Occitane en Provence (page 70), or a bangle from Frey Wille (page 80). And she shouldn't have to cook: treat her to a Mother's Day tea service, complete with sandwiches, savouries and sweets, May 10 to 12 at The Urban Tea Merchant (page 28). If she's not the hot-tea type, she can order a tea-infused cocktail. And please, leave the macaroni art at home.—Sheri Radford
