

Wearable Art

Seeking a superb souvenir? Local designer Chloë Angus teamed up with First Nations artist Clarence Mills to create the perfect West Coast memento: capris with a modern Haida design. Made from soft bamboo, these comfy leggings are ideal for everything from sightseeing in the city to strolling along the shore to lounging on the couch. Find them at www.chloeangus.com, or make an appointment at the Chloë Angus studio (page 29).

Sole Mates

At some point, every woman has craved the cute factor of high heels built for teens, but with the comfort of footwear Granny can walk in all day long. We'll let you in on a secret: high heels don't have to be torture devices. Believe it or not, they can feel good, too. These boho-chic wedges from Geox (page 35) are a shoo-in for cutest shoes of summer. They're also light and durable, with a memory foam insole for comfort and cushioning, and a perforated sole designed for breathability and grip. Feet, meet your new best friends.

New in Town

Attention, coffee connoisseurs: Nespresso (page 38) recently opened its first stand-alone boutique in BC. In addition to selling coffee capsules and machines, the shop showcases the brand's sustainability initiatives: tabletops made out of coffee grounds, wood sourced from reforestation programs, and systems that reduce energy and water. Plus Nespresso has launched a pilot project with Recycle BC to collect used pods. Time for a coffee break!
